

The Hellenic Society Prometheas

Invites you to a lecture:

Socrates: Citizen, Soldier, Philosopher A new perspective

Dr. Ioanna Papadopoulou

E.U. Fellow in Multi-Disciplinary Research, IT and Publications
Center for Hellenic Studies - Harvard University
Associate at the Université Libre de Bruxelles

Undeniably immortal in a sense cherished by the ancient Greeks, who conceived of everlasting fame as a form of immortality, Socrates is probably the most famous ancient philosopher. One interesting question to ask is the following: would Socrates be as famous had he not been condemned to death? The lecture will address this question in the context of understanding how Socrates relationship to the city of Athens affected his philosophical development.

The lecture will be in English. Reception will follow.
As always, books on Greek language and culture will be on display.

Friday, October 16th, 2015 at 8:00pm
The Hellenic Center
6506 Bells Mill Rd, Bethesda, MD 20817